

Contract for Inclusion in Involutions Journal

I, _____ (hereafter referred to as the Author) grant to Involutions, under the management of Ken Halpern, (hereafter referred to as the Journal), nonexclusive right of publication for the following (hereafter referred to collectively as the Work):

This permission is granted without monetary compensation, will not expire, and allows the Journal to

1. Retain copies of the Work in any printed or digital form for its archives.
2. Publish, electronically or in print, the Work as an obvious part of the Journal.
3. Adjust the formatting of the Work as appropriate for publication. Such adjustments may not materially alter the creative content of the Work.
4. Determine the placement of the Work as a whole or in parts within the Journal.
5. Uses the Author's Work or any piece of it in the advertising of the Journal. In this case alone, the Author may not be explicitly associated with the Work.
6. Register the Work as part of the Journal with the Library of Congress or elsewhere. The Author will retain copyright.

The Journal makes the following representations to the Author:

1. It will not make a profit from the publication of the Work.
2. Both the Author and the Journal will clearly be indicated in any publication of the Author's work by the Journal. The sole exception is in advertisements for the Journal.
3. The Journal will not attempt to interfere in any way with the publication of the Author's Work elsewhere.
4. The Author retains all rights over the Work aside from those explicitly granted to the Journal in this contract.

The Author claims that he/she is legally entitled to grant the rights contained herein and that the Work does not infringe on any other party's copyrights, violate any laws, or contain any content that would subject the Journal to civil or criminal liability.
